Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

If parents bring up a child with the sole aim of turning the child into a genius, they will cause a disaster. According to several leading educational psychologists, this is one of the biggest mistakes which ambitious parents make. Generally, the child will be only too aware of what his parents expect, and will fail. Unrealistic parental expectations can cause great damage to children.

However, if parents are not too unrealistic about what they expect their children to do, but are ambitious in a sensible way, the child may succeed in doing very well, especially if the parents are very supportive of their child. Michael Collins is very lucky. He is crazy about music, and his parents help him a lot by taking him to concerts and arranging private piano and violin lessons for him. They even drive him 50 kilometers twice a week for violin lessons. Michael's mother knows very little about music, but his father plays the trumpet in a large orchestra.

However, he never makes Michael enter music competitions if he is unwilling. Winston Smith, Michael's friend, however, is not so lucky. Both his parents are successful musicians, and they set too high a standard for Winston. They want their son to be as successful as they are and so they enter him for every piano competition held. They are very unhappy when he does not win. Winston is always afraid that he will disappoint his parents and now he always seems quiet and unhappy.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

In 776 B.C, the first Olympic Games were held at the foot of Mount Olympus to honor the Greek's chief god, Zeus. The warm climate for outdoor activities, the need for preparedness in war, and their lifestyle caused the Greeks to create competitive sports. Only the elite and military could participate at first, but later the Games were open to all free Greek males who had no criminal record. The Greeks emphasized physical fitness and strength in their education of youth. Therefore, contests in running, jumping, discus and javelin throwing, boxing and horse racing were held in individual cities, and the winners competed every four years at Mount Olympus. Winners were greatly honored by having olive wreaths placed on their heads and having poems sung about their deeds. Originally, these contests were held as games of friendship, and any wars in progress were halted to allow the Games to take place. They also helped to strengthen bonds among competitors and the different cities represented. The Greeks attached so much importance to the Games that they calculated time in four-year cycles called "Olympiads", dating from 776 B.C. The contest coincided with religious festivities and constituted an effort on the part of the participants to please the gods. Anyone who disobeyed the rules were dismissed and seriously punished. These athletes brought shame not only to themselves but also to the cities they represented.

Question 55: Which of the following is NOT true?

- A. The Game were held in Greece every four years.
- B. Battles were interrupted to allow the Games to take place.
- C. Winners placed olive wreaths on their head.
- D. Poems glorified the winners.

Question 56: The word "elite" is closest in meaning to

In 776 B.C, the first Olympic Games were held at the foot of Mount Olympus to honor the Greek's chief god, Zeus. The warm climate for outdoor activities, the need for preparedness in war, and their lifestyle caused the Greeks to create competitive sports. Only the elite and military could participate at first, but later the Games were open to all free Greek males who had no criminal record. The Greeks emphasized physical fitness and strength in their education of youth. Therefore, contests in running, jumping, discus and javelin throwing, boxing and horse racing were held in individual cities, and the winners competed every four years at Mount Olympus. Winners were greatly honored by having olive wreaths placed on their heads and having poems sung about their deeds. Originally, these contests were held as games of friendship, and any wars in progress were halted to allow the Games to take place. They also helped to strengthen bonds among competitors and the different cities represented. The Greeks attached so much importance to the Games that they calculated time in four-year cycles called "Olympiads", dating from 776 B.C. The contest coincided with religious festivities and constituted an effort on the part of the participants to please the gods. Anyone who disobeyed the rules were dismissed and seriously punished. These athletes brought shame not only to themselves but also to the cities they represented.

Question 55: Which of the following is NOT true?

A. The Game were held in Greece every four years.

B. Winners placed olive wreaths on their head.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

If parents bring up a child with the sole aim of turning the child into a genius, they will cause a disaster. According to several leading educational psychologists, this is one of the biggest mistakes which ambitious parents make. Generally, the child will be only too aware of what his parents expect, and will fail. Unrealistic parental expectations can cause great damage to children.

However, if parents are not too unrealistic about what they expect their children to do, but are ambitious in a sensible way, the child may succeed in doing very well, especially if the parents are very supportive of their child. Michael Collins is very lucky. He is crazy about music, and his parents help him a lot by taking him to concerts and arranging private piano and violin lessons for him. They even drive him 50 kilometers twice a week for violin lessons. Michael's mother knows very little about music, but his father plays the trumpet in a large orchestra. However, he never makes Michael enter music competitions if he is unwilling. Winston Smith, Michael's friend, however, is not so lucky. Both his parents are successful musicians, and they set too high a standard for Winston. They want their son to be as successful as they are and so they enter him for every piano competition held. They are very unhappy when he does not win. Winston is always afraid that he will disappoint his parents and now he always seems quiet and unhappy.

Question 40: The word "unwilling" in the passage mostly means _____.

Reference books are not designed to be read from the first page to the last but rather to be consulted to answer the questions and provide both general and specific pieces of information.

One of the most (33)..... used reference books is a dictionary, which provides information about words. It lists meanings and spellings, (34).....how a word is pronounced, gives (35).....of how it is used, may reveal its origins and also lists synonyms and (36).....To help you find the words faster, there are guide words at the top of each page showing the first and the last words on that page – and of course it (37).....to know the alphabet.

There may be numerous special sections at the back with (38).....about famous people and places, lists of dates and specific names, etc. there is usually a section at the front (39).....how to use the dictionary, which includes the special abbreviations or signs.

An atlas is also a reference book and (40).....charts, tables and geographical facts, as well as maps. Political maps locate countries and cities, physical maps show the formation of the land with its mountains and valleys, and economic maps show industries and agriculture. To find a specific place, you need to look in the (41).....at the back of the atlas and the exact position on the map. There are numerous map (42).....that you need to know in order to be able to read a map – almost like a special language – and these are explained at the front of the atlas.

Questions 45 – 54: Read the following passage then answer questions by circling the letter A, B, C, or D.

As the Millennium approaches, an economic earthquake is shaking the globe, producing an upheaval comparable to the Industrial Revolution that gave birth to the manufacturing age. The Information Revolution is powered by breathtaking technological advances, accelerating world trade and the spread of free-market policies. Economic values are being torn down. Vast new markets beckon. Ten years ago, the free-market economies encompassed 1 billion people. Now, says U.S. Treasury Under Secretary Lawrence Summers, "It is only a slight exaggeration to say this is the era when 3 billion people entered the free market".

Yet the world is also entering an era of uncertainty and dislocation. Just as the Industrial Revolution unleashed forces that destroyed the old agricultural order, so the Information Revolution is creating a new global division of labour with far-reaching consequences for the fortune of nations and individuals.

The only certainty, perhaps, is the size and speed of change. The globalised economy is one of 24-hour financial markets, huge split-second flows of international funds, and intense competition as companies roam the world for capital, labour, technology, raw materials, and markets. More flexible production techniques are allowing giant global corporations to locate their activities wherever it is economically most advantageous. The traditional 'industrial' countries, led by the U.S., are moving inexorably, though at differing speeds, to service-based economies. In the not too distant future, only one in ten of their workers will be employed in manufacturing.

Many economists are confident that a bright era of world growth will emerge from the current disruptions, that the changes are no more disturbing than the 18th century moves from countryside to industry. Service jobs replacing those in manufacturing are by no means all low paid. They include banking, insurance, marketing, design, and computer programming.

Question 45. Which of the following is the main topic of the passage?

- A. The changing job market
- B. Changing financial markets
- C. Global increase in employment
- D. Worldwide economic changes

Question 46. It can be inferred from the passage that there will be more

Question 54. The word "they" in paragraph 4 refers to

- A. economists
- B. jobs
- C. changes
- D. moves

Questions 55 – 64: Read the following passage then answer questions by circling the letter A, B, C, or D.

Increasing number of parents in the U.S are choosing to teach their children at home. In fact, the U.S Department of Education has estimated that in 1999, about 850,000 children were being homeschooled. Some educational experts say that the real number is double this estimate, and the ranks of homeschooled children seem to be growing at the average rate of about eleven percent every year.

At one time, there was a theory accounting for homeschooling: it was traditionally used for students who could not attend school because of behavioural or learning difficulties. Today, however, more parents are taking on the responsibility of educating their own children at home due to their dissatisfaction with the educational system. Many parents are unhappy about class size, as well as problems inside the classroom. Teacher shortages and lack of funding mean that, in many schools, one teacher is responsible for thirty or forty students. The children are, therefore, deprived of the attention they need. Escalating classroom violence has also motivated some parents to remove their children from school.

Although there have been a lot of arguments for and against it, homeschooling in the U.S has become a multi – million dollar industry, and it is growing bigger and bigger. There are now plenty of websites, support groups, and conventions that help parents protect their rights and enable them to learn more about educating their children. Though once it was the only choice for troubled children, homeschooling today is an accepted alternative to an educational system that many believe is failing.

Question 55: The number of parents who want to teach their own children in the U.S is.....

Increasing number of parents in the U.S are choosing to teach their children at home. In fact, the U.S Department of Education has estimated that in 1999, about 850,000 children were being homeschooled. Some educational experts say that the real number is double this estimate, and the ranks of homeschooled children seem to be growing at the average rate of about eleven percent every year.

At one time, there was a theory accounting for homeschooling: it was traditionally used for students who could not attend school because of behavioural or learning difficulties. Today, however, more parents are taking on the responsibility of educating their own children at home due to their dissatisfaction with the educational system. Many parents are unhappy about class size, as well as problems inside the classroom. Teacher shortages and lack of funding mean that, in many schools, one teacher is responsible for thirty or forty students. The children are, therefore, deprived of the attention they need. Escalating classroom violence has also motivated some parents to remove their children from school.

Although there have been a lot of arguments for and against it, homeschooling in the U.S has become a multi – million dollar industry, and it is growing bigger and bigger. There are now plenty of websites, support groups, and conventions that help parents protect their rights and enable them to learn more about educating their children. Though once it was the only choice for troubled children, homeschooling today is an accepted alternative to an educational system that many believe is failing.

Questions 6 – 15: Read the following passage then answer questions by circling the letter A, B, C, or D.

As the Millennium approaches, an economic earthquake is shaking the globe, producing an upheaval comparable to the Industrial Revolution that gave birth to the manufacturing age. The Information Revolution is powered by breathtaking technological advances, accelerating world trade and the spread of free-market policies. Economic values are being torn down. Vast new markets beckon. Ten years ago, the free-market economies encompassed 1 billion people. Now, says U.S. Treasury Under Secretary Lawrence Summers, "it is only a slight exaggeration to say this is the era when 3 billion people entered the free market".

Yet the world is also entering an era of uncertainty and dislocation. Just as the Industrial Revolution unleashed forces that destroyed the old agricultural order, so the Information Revolution is creating a new global division of labour with far-reaching consequences for the fortune of nations and individuals.

The only certainty, perhaps, is the size and speed of change. The globalised economy is one of 24-hour financial markets, huge split-second flows of international funds, and intense competition as companies roam the world for capital, labour, technology, raw materials, and markets. More flexible production techniques are allowing giant global corporations to locate their activities wherever it is economically most advantageous. The traditional 'industrial' countries, led by the U.S., are moving inexorably, though at differing speeds, to service-based economies. In the not too distant future, only one in ten of their workers will be employed in manufacturing.

Many economists are confident that a bright era of world growth will emerge from the current disruptions, that the changes are no more disturbing than the 18th century moves from countryside to industry. Service jobs replacing those in manufacturing are by no means all low paid. They include banking, insurance, marketing, design, and computer programming.

Questions 35 – 44: Read the following passage then answer questions by circling the letter A, B, C, or D.

As the Millennium approaches, an economic earthquake is shaking the globe, producing an upheaval comparable to the Industrial Revolution that gave birth to the manufacturing age. The Information Revolution is powered by breathtaking technological advances, accelerating world trade and the spread of free-market policies. Economic values are being torn down. Vast new markets beckon. Ten years ago, the free-market economies encompassed 1 billion people. Now, says U.S. Treasury Under Secretary Lawrence Summers, "It is only a slight exaggeration to say this is the era when 3 billion people entered the free market".

Yet the world is also entering an era of uncertainty and dislocation. Just as the Industrial Revolution unleashed forces that destroyed the old agricultural order, so the Information Revolution is creating a new global division of labour with far-reaching consequences for the fortune of nations and individuals.

The only certainty, perhaps, is the size and speed of change. The globalised economy is one of 24-hour financial markets, huge split-second flows of international funds, and intense competition as companies roam the world for capital, labour, technology, raw materials, and markets. More flexible production techniques are allowing giant global corporations to locate their activities wherever it is economically most advantageous. The traditional 'industrial' countries, led by the U.S., are moving inexorably, though at differing speeds, to service-based economies. In the not too distant future, only one in ten of their workers will be employed in manufacturing.

Many economists are confident that a bright era of world growth will emerge from the current disruptions, that the changes are no more disturbing than the 18th century moves from countryside to industry. Service jobs replacing those in manufacturing are by no means all low paid. They include banking, insurance, marketing, design, and computer programming.

Reference books are not designed to be read from the first page to the last but rather to be consulted to answer the questions and provide both general and specific pieces of information.

One of the most (50).....- used reference books is a dictionary, which provides information about words. It lists meanings and spellings, (51).....how a word is pronounced, gives (52).....of how it is used, may reveal its origins and also lists synonyms and (53).....To help you find the words faster, there are guide words at the top of each page showing the first and the last words on that page – and of course it (54).....to know the alphabet.

There may be numerous special sections at the back with (55).....about famous people and places, lists of dates and specific names, etc. there is usually a section at the front (56).....how to use the dictionary, which includes the special abbreviations or signs.

An atlas is also a reference book and (57).....charts, tables and geographical facts, as well as maps. Political maps locate countries and cities, physical maps show the formation of the land with its mountains and valleys, and economic maps show industries and agriculture. To find a specific place, you need to look in the (58).....at the back of the atlas and the exact position on the map. There are numerous map (59).....that you need to know in order to be able to read a map – almost like a special language – and these are explained at the front of the atlas.
